Dear school, we've said to thee
Each strong man, each gentle maid
Will ever loyal be,
Not for a day, not for a year
Shall we each other greet
As fellow students, fellow friends,
But till in Heaven we meet,*

*So hail Alma Mater,
Dear school, we all love thee,
So hail Alma Mater,
We'll aye be true to thee.*

And hearts again will sadly yearn

TROY'S PROGRAM FOR EDUCATION OF TEACHERS RECOGNIZED

"Insofar as an organized university discipline in Educational Foundations is beginning to appear, who is designing and constructing it: The professors of education? The professors of arts and sciences? Is it being done by the unified effort of the entire faculty in all these three fields, all of whom are concerned with the building of the full program in the education of teachers? Or is it being done by one of these groups in isolation from the other.

"In the state Colleges, it is much more the practice for these three major organizations of the college to work in close cooperation, each one playing its role in the creation of the total program.

"Two conspicuous examples can be cited: first, the state Teachers College at Troy, Alabama, a small undergraduate institution of about 800 students; second, the San Francisco State College, recently grown to some 6000 students.

"It happens that in both institutions the initiating leadership resides in the president—Dr. C. B. Smith at Troy for nearly fifteen years, and D. J. Paul Leonard at San Francisco, who since the close of World War II has assembled and inspired a dynamic staff of young professors competent in all the sciences, arts and in education.

"In each of these institutions I found unified teamwork, the continuous and uninterrupted cooperation of all departments of the College in working together at the problem of building a unified college curriculum from the freshman to the senior year, and including the masters year. The inevitable result is a fine body of new and integrated courses of instruction.

"I found in the faculty the devotion to the problem of rethinking and reconstructing the program of education, the burning enthusiasm and dynamic spirit which characterized the best of the child-centered schools in their youthful days immediately after World War I. I found not only this optimistic fervor, but also a scientific mood of research and inquiry of criticism and appraisal which promises much for the continuous development of this work."

Reports of the Committee Chairman to the NATIONAL SOCIETY OF COLLEGE TEACHERS OF EDUCATION.

Editor, JOYCE DEUEL
Associate Editor, OTIS KIRKLAND

The Staff wishes that this PALLADIUM will grow dearer to you—the students of Troy State—because:

*"When Time who steals our years away
Shall steal our pleasures too,
The mem'ry of the past will stay,
And half our joys renew."*

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE

FOUNDED 1887

TROY, ALABAMA

Public schools and colleges are maintained in modern times to assure continued improvement of society. The citizens are taxed and large sums are appropriated to schools and colleges. Millions of young people may tend to regard these opportunities as simply openings for achieving personal success. This way of looking at education is natural and legitimate, but is an incomplete view.

If our state and country did not recognize the necessity for good citizens, there would be no public schools. If we felt no need for physicists, engineers, chemists, physicians, surgeons, agriculturists, and teachers, there would be no colleges supported by taxes on the people. It is not altogether because individuals want to enter such fields, that schools are set up; it is rather because our civilization would slip backward if individuals were not educated for them.

Schools and colleges are supported at state expense in order that civilization may not only survive but move forward. We could not have won the last two wars had not our schools been at work for years previously preparing men and women for many highly technical fields.

Progress in modern times is impossible without education on a grand scale.

C. B. Smith
President

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE

FOUNDED 1887

TROY, ALABAMA

Dear Seniors of 1951:

You are fortunate in being able to join the parade of educational progress at so opportune a time. In many respects the present century has witnessed more progress in education than did any other period in the past five thousand years of the history of civilization. I refer especially to progress in literacy, citizenship, and economic well-being.

Today there is more literacy than ever before. Wherever we go, people can read, people of all races and all socio-economic levels. Literacy--a high level of literacy--is taken for granted.

In the area of citizenship education we are making progress. At the local level we find education to be the means whereby the individual becomes better able to serve his community rather than to exploit his neighbors. At the world level, the best minds are endeavoring to develop a workable system for all citizens of the world.

Today education is a means of making available to mankind the highest standard of living ever known. Education produces our scientists, technicians, industrialists, and business men; education also makes better consumers out of citizens in general.

Thus, the three areas of literacy, citizenship, and economic well-being exemplify the progress of education in our time.

Greetings:

To the Seniors of 1951 we extend the kindest congratulations. Our wish for everyone of you is that you have attained the "finished product" as set forth by the Palladium Staff in this Annual for these principles for teaching are splendid principles for all human relationships.

We are proud that this is the basis on which our program at Troy is built. It is just as important for us all to realize that one's Education is never, finished, only courses are completed.

To you who go your separate ways, and to all of us who remain on college campuses, our hope is that we shall all strive to become more nearly the "finished product" by continuing our Education with minds alert and hearts open to receive all that is new and profitable to us and our fellowmen.

Very sincerely,

Annie Mae Powell

DR. C. M. FARMER

*Thirty years of service to date
Almost back to the days of the slate,
Laboring hard and long for learners,
He gave true help and guidance.*

*An organizer as well so he did start
Clubs many and took an active part,
For the benefit of others
Through many long years.*

*Teaching is an art; he, a master,
Doing things well and very much faster,
Like a long winding river
That silently flows by.*

*He was a true teacher of the science
His service is in true defiance,
And long will be remembered
The artful knowledge he gave.*

*Love for him on the Troy State Campus
Will forever hold and encamp us,
As he retires at the end of the year,
Awaiting that long earned rest.*
